

Neil and Margaret Slingerland

Neil and Margaret Slingerland have a passion to help people find their life purpose and to help them see their worth as citizens of the Kingdom of God. To this end they work tirelessly and invest generously to serve their family, church family, employees, and friends.

Both Neil and Margaret are lifelong residents of the farming communities of southern Alberta Canada. From his earliest days, Neil has worked in the farming, feedlot and the grain commodity businesses.

Neil spent much of his early employment farming with his father and managing his own feedlot during the winter months. For five years, he worked at the Parklake Feeders - a 4000 head feedlot and managed his own personal 2000 head feedlot. In 1991, Neil accepted a position as manager of Double "O" Feeders Ltd. in Vauxhall, Alberta. During his three and a half year tenure managing this 6000 head feedlot, he honed his management skills and developed his knowledge of the beef business.

In 1996, Neil saw the need and potential of the grain merchandizing business. He founded Newco Commodities Ltd. in Coaldale in 1997. This business venture has proven to be very successful as Neil has skillfully built an outstanding organization with an extraordinary reputation.

As Neil developed his career, Margaret focused her time on the family and training young ladies in Christian values.

Both Neil and Margaret are certified Strategic Life Alignment ('SLA') Consultants. Their commitment to the SLA Curriculum is evidenced by their proactive investment of this training in their children, employees, extended family, church family, and friends.

Neil and Margaret have been married since 1986 and have eight children. They reside in Coaldale Alberta Canada. They attend Free Grace Fellowship in Lethbridge Alberta Canada where Neil serves as an elder.
